

TECHINCAL WARRANTS

WHO CAN BECOME A WARRANT OFFICER?

Warrant Officers are recruited with specific levels of technical ability acquired through military and/or civilian experience, training, and education. Warrant Officers access from multiple sources.

- Current serving enlisted Soldiers
- Prior service enlisted Soldiers (Individual Ready Reserve)
- Commissioned officers (current or prior serving)
- Warrant officers from other Army components
- Other uniformed service members

TECHNICAL vs AVIATION WARRANT OFFICERS

The Army makes a distinction between two groups of Warrant Officers — Technical and Aviation. Aviation Warrant Officers pilot the Army's advanced aircraft while Technical Warrant Officers maintain, operate, and integrate Army advanced personnel, logistics, and combat systems.

Generally, Technical Warrant Officer applicants must be Sergeant/E-5 or higher to be considered for selection. There is NO minimum grade requirement for Aviation Warrant Officer applicants.

TECHNICAL WARRANT OFFICERS

TAKE YOUR MOS EXPERIENCE TO A NEW LEVEL

Soldiers possessing the Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) qualification, demonstrated performance, character and leader potential to develop as subject matters experts in their field may compete for warrant officer selection.

Applicants obtain letters of recommendation from commanders at the company and field grade level in addition to a senior Warrant Officer in their accessioning branch. Best qualified applicants will compete to fill current or anticipated vacancies. Individuals selected must meet Army branch proponent technical scrutiny.

ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS FOR TECHNICAL WARRANT OFFICERS

- Complete appropriate Noncommissioned Officer Education System (NCOES) leadership courses
- Serve in an NCO rank (waivable for some MOSs)
- Document proficiency in specialty area
- Meet prerequisite standards established by the Army MOS branch proponent
